This song is for the one who loves deeply but needs reassurance that the effort they're putting in is worth it. Words of affirmation are their love language, and distance is their self-defence. They just wish they didn't have to get hurt to need it.

I was thinking about him, about her, and bringing my own experiences into it too. We live in a generation where it's easy to connect with anyone in the world, but it's never been harder to be intimate.

When you choose someone, and you both know there's something strong between you, but one side won't admit it, that leads to overthinking, anxiety and stress nobody asked for.

“Kuna tabia zitu analiza, kwenye ukorofi na lawama maana, si wote wadogo twakimbiza mandoto yetu na kuvunja laana.”

Overthinking lives in the space between what we feel and what we're willing to say out loud.

SAY IT OUT LOUD. THE PERSON WAITING FOR THE WORDS CAN'T READ YOUR MIND.
